WALTER SCOTT

FEARLESS CHAMPION OF THE WEST

Is Walter Scott Deserving of Your Confidence?

IN 1900 Mr. Scott was practically unknown beyond the limits of his own town. When he was nominated to oppose the redoubtable Nicholas Flood Davin those who did not know our leader cried out in derision, "Who is this boy that we should support him? He has had no experience, he cannot speak on the public platform, he will be crushed under an avalanche of votes." And even his warmest friends were a little doubtful as to the ability of their nominee for the task before him, but a few knowing ones said "Wait and see." They waited and they saw—what? They saw the "boy" develop into a debater whose quiet power of speech was such as to win a hearing from any audience be it ever so hostile and ere that campaign was ended he, the inexperienced campaigner, met and faced and conquered his rival, one of Canada's most eloquent and powerful speakers. And when the ballots were counted it was found that for the first time in her history Western Assiniboia had elected a Liberal member.

But greater things were yet to come. Undeterred by the assembled wisdom of Canada, the newly made Member took up the arduous duties devolving upon one whose lot it was to fight the battles of the great West and to wrest from an indifferent East the rights so long denied. In season and out of season Walter Scott was found fighting manfully and successfully for the recognition of the rights of a young people, fighting to break the grain monopoly by assisting the passage of the Manitoba Grain Act, opposing the efforts of the Railway corporations to increase their power and preserving the public domains from their clutches and supporting in every way the claims of the North-West Government for a grant commensurate with the needs of the country. Thus did Walter Scott in five short years win for himself the title of "Fearless Champion of the West." And to many and many a pioneer in this Province has our leader proved himself a friend indeed and never has he refused to friend or foe his generous assistance in the securing of any reasonable and legitimate concession. Little wonder is it then that the members of the Liberal party of this new Province when called upon to select one who should guide and direct its destinies turned as one man to Walter Scott, "the Fearless Champion of the West."

Electors do not be deceived. Has not Mr. Scott by word and action justified in fullest measure his right to be called a friend of the West? Why then reject him for one who promises you only discord, racial and religious war? Can you believe that Walter Scott, who has fought your battles and won for you your rights, is less worthy of your confidence than Mr. Haultain? Have not his achievements pointed him out as the one man in this Province to take charge of our affairs in this time of transition and justified the selection made by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor? Will you discard Walter Scott and his policy of Peace, Progress and Prosperity in favor of the policy of F. W. G. Haultain with its attendant strife and stagnation?

W. R. MOTHERWELL,
Minister of Agriculture

In 1901 the farmers cried out against the oppression of the transportation and the grain monopolies which were despoiling them of the results of their labor. They said, "Let us organise that we may be free," and the result was the Grain Growers' Association, and the President of the Grain Growers' Association was William R. Motherwell. His work for his fellow farmers is known throughout the length and breadth of the Province and needs no recapitulation and is such as to give abundant assurances that the interests of Agriculture will be in competent hands if the Liberal party be returned. Farmers do you want W. R. Motherwell to be your Minister? If so vote for the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Lamont is a comparatively young man, who in a few years has won for himself a high place in the esteem of his fellow citizens in his adopted city of Prince Albert and whose legal attainments and ability are such as to ensure good legislation well administered.
